

Teacher of Science with Digital Technologies, Monivae College Hamilton

We are seeking a passionate Science teacher with a highly imaginative and progressive attitude towards the subject.

The successful applicant will have an extensive knowledge of the Science domain, including Chemistry, Physics and Biology. An ability to scaffold thinking and learning strategies and excellent classroom management skills are required.

Experience in the teaching of Digital Technologies would be an advantage. See below for additional details:

Teacher of Science with Digital Technologies role description

- A progressive and rigorous approach to curriculum development
- An ability to enhance students' critical thinking, including an understanding of metacognitive strategies
- Extensive knowledge of the Science domain and curriculum
- Willingness to take part in ongoing professional development
- An ability to teach to the 7-10 Victorian Curriculum
- Excellent classroom management
- The ability to incorporate Critical and Creative Thinking into curriculum planning
- An openness to designing and delivering STEAM content
- Digital Technologies: An understanding of the Digital Technologies curriculum, particularly related to STEAM, coding, and physical computing
- The ability to offer quality learning to every student and to challenge students to grow
- The capacity to hold teaching through relationships as a core value

This position is expected to commence 15th July 2019.